Bal-e-Jibreel

Poetic English Translation

Allama Muhammad Iqbal

Bal-e-Jibreel

Poetic English Translation

Allama Muhammad Iqbal

Contents

Kalam 001: My Song of Longing

Kalam 002: If the Stars Have Strayed

Kalam 003: There Is No Wine Left in Your Glass

Kalam 004: Make the Radiant Tresses Yet More Radiant

Kalam 005: Whether It Moves You or Not, Hear My Cry

Kalam 006: What Is Love to a Borrowed Life?

Kalam 007: Make Our Hearts the Home of Love and Mercy

Kalam 008: Lest My Dust, Distressed, Become a Heart

Kalam 009: The World Is Turned Upside Down, O Saqi

Kalam 010: Bring Once More That Wine and Cup, O Saqi

Kalam 011: My Saqi Erased the World of I and You

Kalam 012: Priceless Treasure Is the Pain and Burning of Longing

Kalam 013: Have You Forgotten That Age of My Heart?

Kalam 014: The Poppy's Heart Is Brimming with Red Wine

Kalam 015: The Same Ill Fortune, the Same Divine Indifference

Kalam 016: I Thought My Racecourse Lay Beneath the Sky

Kalam 017: One Luminous Wisdom, One Demonstrative Wisdom

Kalam 018: O Lord, This Passing World Is Lovely, Yet

Kalam 019: All Nature's Vastness Cannot Contain My Longing

Kalam 020: I Have Seen Many a Wine-Shop East and West

Kalam 021: What Is Slavery?

Kalam 022: Who Is This Singer of Ghazals?

Kalam 023: That Secret Word Which Taught Me Madness

Kalam 024: O World of Water, Dust, and Wind

Kalam 025: You Are Still Upon the Road

Kalam 026: The Dervish Life of Free Men Is the Keeper of Secrets

Kalam 027: Once More the Mountain and Foothill Glow with Poppy Lamps

Kalam 028: In the Muslim's Blood Lies the Art of Winning Hearts

Kalam 029: Love Brings Rise and Fall to the Song of Life

Kalam 030: The Gaze Is Not Pure When the Heart Is Without Fire

Kalam 031: Thousands of Fears, Yet the Tongue Is the Heart's Companion

Kalam 032: Ask Whether Nature Bears Witness to Your Acceptance

Kalam 033: These European Houris, the Veil of Heart and Sight

Kalam 034: The Farooqi Heart Awake, the Karari Heart Awake

Kalam 035: In the Boldness and Fierceness of the Self, No Pride or Vanity

Kalam 036: An Unworthy Commander, a Broken-Ranked Army

Kalam 037: Though Winter's Wind Held the Sword's Sharpness

Kalam 038: What Is This Ancient Temple but a Heap of Straw?

Kalam 039: Perfection Is Not Abandoning Water and Clay

Kalam 040: Reason Is Not Far from the Threshold

Kalam 041: The Self Is a Sea Whose Shore Is Nowhere

Kalam 042: The Dawn Wind Has Brought Me This Message

Kalam 043: Your Gaze Is Mean, Your Hand Is Short

Kalam 044: Reason Has Knowledge and Nothing More

Kalam 045: What Is Alexander's Glory to the Gaze of Faqr?

Kalam 046: Neither for Earth nor Sky Are You

Kalam 047: O Captive of Place, You Are Not Far from La-Makan

Kalam 048: Reason Gave Me a Philosophic Gaze

Kalam 049: At Last the Heavens Answer the Cries

Kalam 050: Everything Is Absorbed in Self-Display

Kalam 051: Is It Someone's Miracle, or the Turning of Time?

Kalam 052: What Should I Ask the Wise About My Beginning?

Kalam 053: When Love Teaches the Manners of Self-Awareness

Kalam 054: The Message of Midnight Sighs Has Come Again

Kalam 055: Without the Uprising of Longing, I Do Not Remain

Kalam 056: Set Nature Before Wisdom

Kalam 057: These Elders of Church and Sanctuary, Alas, This Helplessness

Kalam 058: Once More the Present Wisdom Has Wrought the Ancient Spell

Kalam 059: Beyond the Stars Lie Other Worlds as Well

Kalam 060: The West Seeks the Perpetuity of Worldly Pleasure

Kalam 061: If the Self Is Made Firm by Knowledge

Kalam 062: The Beauty of Thought in the Schools

Kalam 063: The Event Behind the Veil of the Heavens

Kalam 064: The Passionate Heat Remained No More in the Sufi Circle

Kalam 065: No Collar Was Torn by Its Force

Kalam 066: Thus the Single Pearl Does Not Come to Hand

Kalam 067: Neither in Throne and Crown nor in Army and Force

Kalam 068: Nature Granted Me No Cunning Thought

Kalam 069: The People of Vision Will Build New Abodes

Kalam 070: The Angels Have Informed God of Iqbal

Kalam 071: No Piece Remains, No Game of Pieces

Kalam 072: The Bell Is Hot with Lament; Rise, the Caravan Has Gone

Kalam 073: Through My Song, the Gnostic and the Commoner Were Revived

Kalam 074: The New Moon Passed Beyond Every Station

Kalam 075: Do Not Lose Yourself in This Dawn and Dusk, O Wise One!

Kalam 076: Where the School of Lions and Sovereignty Once Stood

Kalam 077: I Remember Salman's Well-Tuned Point

Kalam 078: The Miracles of Faqr Are Crown, Throne, and Army

Kalam 079: In the Height of Passionate Madness I Remained Warm with Circumambulation

Kalam 080: The Matter of Consciousness, Awareness, and Reason Is Strange

Kalam 081: Though My Manner of Speech Is Not Very Flamboyant

Kalam 082: The Ways and Rites of the Sanctuary Are Unfamiliar to the Uninitiated

Kalam 083: Lost in the Sea's Darkness, Regain Yourself

Kalam 084: I Am of Place, or Free of Place

Kalam 085: I Remained Lost in the Solitudes of Selfhood

Kalam 086: Troubled Is the Business of Knowing

Kalam 087: Faith Is to Sit in Fire Like Khalil

Kalam 088: In Arab's Burning Is Ajam's Music

Kalam 089: Let Anyone See My Reed-Playing

Kalam 090: Perhaps a Heart Dwells in Every Particle

Kalam 091: Tera Andesha Aflaki Nahin Hai

Kalam 092: Na Momin Hai Na Momin Ki Ameeri

Kalam 093: Khudi Ki Jalwaton Mein Mustafai

Kalam 094: Nigah Uljhi Huwi Hai Rang-o-Boo Mein

Kalam 095: Jamal-e-Ishq-o-Masti Ne Nawazi

Kalam 096: Where Is That Ornament of My Gathering?

Kalam 097: I Am No Rider of Camel or Howdah

Kalam 098: You Have Breath in Your Breast, but No Heart

Kalam 099: Your Essence Is Luminous, Pure Are You

Kalam 100: Love's Madness Remains No More

Kalam 101: By the Strength of Self, Rise Over the World

Kalam 102: The Garden's Flower-Dress Is Wet with Dew

Kalam 103: Through Reason, the Wayfarer Sees Clearly

Kalam 104: Give My Dawn-Hour Sigh to the Young

Kalam 105: Your World Is the World of Bird and Fish

Kalam 106: Your Grace Has Not Left Me Without a Jewel

Kalam 107: He Is the Essence of Place and Placelessness

Kalam 108: Sometimes Love Is Wandering and Homeless

Kalam 109: Sometimes Love Is the Solitude of Mountain and Wilderness

Kalam 110: Grant Me the Inner Ardor of the Forebears

Kalam 111: This Truth I Learned from Bu'l-Hasan

Kalam 112: Reason Knows Not Good from Ill

Kalam 113: God's Ordering of Dry and Wet

Kalam 114: This Is Adam, Sovereign of Sea and Land

Kalam 115: The Gnostic's Breath Is the Morning Breeze

Kalam 116: That Blood No Longer Remains in the Veins

Kalam 117: The Hidden Secrets Are Unfolding

Kalam 118: This Everlasting Turning of Time

Kalam 119: Philosophy Is the Self's Un-Islam

Kalam 120: Your Body Is Unacquainted with the Soul

Kalam 121: Iqbal Recited Yesterday to the People of the Garden Walk

Kalam 001: My Song of Longing

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/meri-nawa-e-shauk/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

My song of longing shakes the Sanctuary of the Essence;
In the idol-house of attributes, cries of refuge rise.

Houris and angels are captives in my imaginings;
My gaze disturbs the revelations of You.

Though my quest has traced the forms of temple and Sanctuary,
My lament brings resurrection to Kaaba and Somnath.

At times my piercing gaze cleaves the heart of Being;
At times, entangled, it is stranded in my conjectures.

What wonder have You wrought? You have laid me bare as well;
I alone was a secret in the breast of the universe!

◆ Kalam 002: If the Stars Have Strayed ◆

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/agar-kaj-ro-hain-anjum-asman-tera-hai-ya-mera/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

If stars have strayed awry, is the sky Yours or mine?
Why should I trouble over the world: is the world Yours or mine?

If the placeless realm is empty of the tumult of longing,
Whose fault is it, O Lord? Is the placeless realm Yours or mine?

How did he dare deny at the Dawn of Eternity?
What do I know: is that keeper of secrets Yours or mine?

Muhammad ﷺ is Yours, Gabriel is, Quran is Yours;
But this sweet word, this interpreter: is it Yours or mine?

By the radiance of this one star Your world shines bright;
The downfall of earth-born Adam: is it loss Yours or mine?

◆ Kalam 003: There Is No Wine Left in Your Glass ◆

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tere-shishe-mein-mai-baqi-nahin-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

There is no wine left in Your glass;

Tell me, are You not my Saqi?

To the thirsty, from an ocean, a dewdrop:

Is this generosity, or is it miserliness?

Kalam 004: Make the Radiant Tresses Yet More Radiant

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/gaisu-e-tabdar-ko-aur-bhi-tabdar-kar/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Make the radiant tresses yet more radiant;
Make reason and understanding your prey, make heart and vision your prey.

Let love be veiled, let beauty too be veiled;
Either reveal Yourself, or unveil me.

You encompass the shoreless; I am but a little stream;
Either bring me to Your shore, or make me shoreless.

I am a shell; in Your hands rests the honor of my pearl;
If I am mere potsherd, make me a royal pearl.

If the new song of spring is not within my fate,
Make this half-burning breath a little bird of spring.

Why did You command me to journey from the Garden of Paradise?
The world's task stretches long; now wait for me.

When my book of deeds is brought forth on Judgment Day,
Be ashamed Yourself, and make me ashamed as well.

◆ Kalam 005: Whether It Moves You or Not, Hear My Cry ◆

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/asar-kare-na-kare-sun-to-le-meri-faryad/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Whether it moves You or not, at least hear my cry;
This free servant seeks no reward.

This handful of dust, this desert wind, this vastness of skies:
Is it grace, or is it cruelty, Your delight in creation?

The flower's tent could not stand in the garden wind;
Is this the springtime? Is this the wind of fulfillment?

I am guilty, a stranger far from home, yet
Your ruined realm could not be made habitable even by angels.

He blesses my hunger for hardship:
That simple wilderness, that groundless world of Yours.

A nature that loves danger finds no ease
In a garden where no hunter lies in wait.

The station of longing is not for Your holy ones;
It belongs to those whose courage runs high.

◆ Kalam 006: What Is Love to a Borrowed Life? ◆

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kya-ishq-aik-zindagi-e-mastaar-ka/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

What is love to a life on loan,
What is love of the lasting for the fleeting?

The love whose candle death can snuff with one breath
Has no delight of burning, no delight of waiting.

What is my poor measure? The heat and brilliance of one breath;
Why should a spark wrestle with a flame where it does not belong?

First grant me life everlasting;
Then watch the longing and delight of this restless heart.

Give me a thorn whose prick shall never fade;
O Lord, a pain whose ache shall never fade!

◆ Kalam 007: Make Our Hearts the Home of Love and Mercy ◆

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/dilon-ko-markaz-e-mehar-o-wafa-kar/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Make our hearts the center of mercy and fidelity;
Make them acquainted with the Sanctuary of Majesty.

To the one You have given bread of barley,
Grant also the arm of Haider.

◆ Kalam 008: Lest My Dust, Distressed, Become a Heart ◆

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/preshaan-ho-ke-meri-khaak/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

Distressed, may my dust at last become a heart;
What is difficult now, O Lord, may not become difficult once more.

Do not let the houris of Paradise compel me into song;
May my inward burning not become the warmth of the gathering.

The wayfarer sometimes remembers the destination he left behind;
May this ache within my breast not become the grief of the destination.

Love has made me a shoreless sea;
May this watchfulness over myself not become my shore.

Even in this colorless, scentless world, may my seeking not become
That same old tale of trailing after the camel-litter.

The ascent of earth-born Adam makes the stars tremble:
Lest this broken star become the perfect moon.

Kalam 009: The World Is Turned Upside Down, O Saqi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/digargoon-hai-jahan-taron-ki-gardish-taez-hai-saqi/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The world is turned upside down; the stars whirl fast, O Saqi;
In every atom, the tumult of resurrection roars, O Saqi.

The treasure of faith and knowledge has been looted from Allah's people;
Whose infidel glance is this, blood-shedding, O Saqi?

The same old sickness, the same old weakness of the heart;
The same water of joy-awakening is its cure, O Saqi.

No fire of longing rises in the heart of the Sanctuary;
Your appearing still comes clothed in the veil, O Saqi.

No Rumi has risen again from Ajam's tulip fields;
The same Iranian clay and water, the same Tabriz, O Saqi.

Iqbal is not without hope for his ruined field:
Let it receive a little rain, and this soil is rich, O Saqi.

The wayfaring faqir has been granted secrets of sovereignty;
Let the wealth of Parviz flow through my song, O Saqi.

Kalam 010: Bring Once More That Wine and Cup, O Saqi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/la-phir-aik-bar-wohi-badah-o-jaam-ae-saqi/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Bring once more that wine and cup, O Saqi;
Let my true station come into my hands, O Saqi.

For three hundred years the wine-houses of Hind have been shut;
Now it is fitting that Your grace flow freely, O Saqi.

Only a little remained in my wine-cup of ghazal;
The Sheikh declares that even this is forbidden, O Saqi.

The lion-hearted have deserted the wilderness of inquiry;
Only the slaves of Sufi and Mullah remain, O Saqi.

Who has carried off love's liver-piercing sword?
In the hand of knowledge, only an empty sheath, O Saqi.

When the breast is lit, the burning word is life itself;
When it is not lit, speech is everlasting death, O Saqi.

Do not leave my night bereft of moonlight;
Your cup holds the full moon, O Saqi.

Kalam 011: My Saqi Erased the World of I and You

JSON title: Mita Diya Mere Saqi Ne Alam-e-Maan-o-Tu(This cup divine has set me free from the illusive world of sense)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/mita-diya-mere-saqi-ne-alam-e-maan-o-tu/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

My Saqi erased the world of I and you,
Pouring me the wine of ’لَا اِلٰہَ اِلَّا ھُو’.

No wine, no verse, no Saqi, no clamor of string and drum—
Only the mountain's silence, the stream's lip, the wild tulip.

See the fearless dignity of the tavern's beggar:
Reaching the Fountain of Life, he smashes his little cup.

My little cup is precious in this age,
For the Sufis' gourds lie empty in the monastery.

I am newly come; concealment is better for me,
For my gaze is wilder still than my heart.

Though his place is in the waves of the sea,
The pearl's ablution is the purity of its nature.

More beautiful are rose and tulip through his grace;
In the colorful-voiced poet's gaze, there is magic.

◆ Kalam 012: Priceless Treasure Is the Pain and Burning of Longing ◆

JSON title: Mata-e-Bebaha Hai Dard-o-Souz-e-Arzoo Mandi (Slow fire of longing, wealth beyond compare)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/mata-e-bebaha-hai-dard-o-souz-e-arzoo-mandi/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Pain and the burning of longing are treasure beyond price;
Give me the station of servitude—I will not take the majesty of lordship.

For Your free servants, neither this world nor that:
Here, the bondage of dying; there, the bondage of living.

The veil is an elixir for the wanderer in love's lane;
Your long withdrawal fans the fire within me.

He can pass his days among mountain and wilderness,
For nest-building is humiliation to the falcon.

Was this the grace of a gaze, or the miracle of a school?
Who taught Ismaeel the manners of a son?

My grave is a place of pilgrimage for the people of resolve;
I taught the dust of the road the secret of Alwand.

What need has beauty of meaning for my adornment?
Nature itself applies henna to the tulip.

Kalam 013: Have You Forgotten That Age of My Heart?

JSON title: Tujhe Yaad Kya Nahin Hai Mere Dil Ka Woh Zamana (Have You forgotten then my heart of old)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tujhe-yaad-kya-nahin-hai-mere-dil-ka-woh-zamana/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Have You forgotten that age of my heart,
That sanctuary of love, that whip of the gaze?

These idols of the present age, fashioned in the school:
Neither the unbeliever's grace nor Azar's art of carving.

There is no quiet corner in this open expanse;
What a strange world this is—neither cage nor nest.

The vine's vein waits for the rain of Your grace,
For no Magian wine remains in Ajam's taverns.

My fellow birds took this for the touch of spring;
What do they know of this lover's song?

From my dust and blood You brought this world to birth;
What is a martyr's recompense? Everlasting ardor and radiance.

By Your nurture of Your servant, my days pass on;
I have no complaint against friends, no grievance against the age.

Kalam 014: The Poppy's Heart Is Brimming with Red Wine

JSON title: Zameer-e-Lala Mai-e-Laal Se Huwa Labraiz(By dint of Spring the poppy-cup, With vintage red is over-flown)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/zameer-e-lala-mai-e-laal-se-huwa-labraiz/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The poppy's heart is brimming with ruby wine;
At the first sign, the Sufi broke his abstinence.

Wherever Love has spread its board,
It has made the faqirs heirs to Parviz.

These stars are ancient, and the sky is worn;
I want a world that is newborn still.

Who knows what the tumult of resurrection is?
The turning of Your gaze is my resurrection.

Do not snatch from me the delight of the dawn prayer's sigh;
Do not make neglect in Your gaze seem a form of favor.

The season of flowers does not suit the sorrowful heart;
The garden bird's cry is far too joy-awakening.

It is the speech of the heedless: make peace with the age;
If the age will not make peace with you, then fight the age.

Kalam 015: The Same Ill Fortune, the Same Divine Indifference

JSON title: Wohi Meri Kam Naseebi, Wohi Teri Be-Niazi(Mine ill luck the same and same, O Lord, the coldness on Your part)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/wohi-meri-kam-naseebi-wohi-teri-be-niazi/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The same ill fortune of mine, the same indifference of Yours;
This mastery of song has brought me nothing.

Where am I, and where are You? Is this place or the placeless?
Is this world mine, or is it Your wonder-working?

In this struggle passed the nights of my life:
Now Rumi's burning music, now Razi's tortuous thought.

That deceived falcon, raised among vultures—
What can it know of the ways and rites of falconry?

I have no tongue for ghazal, nor am I versed in speech;
Let there be some heart-winning cry, Persian or Arabic.

In poverty and kingship there is no such distinction:
Here the army's sword-play, there the gaze's sword-play.

One broke away from the caravan, one grew distrustful of the Sanctuary;
For the caravan leader has no habit of winning hearts.

Kalam 016: I Thought My Racecourse Lay Beneath the Sky

JSON title: Dilon Ko Markaz-e-MApni Jolangah Zair-e-Asman Samjha Tha Main(Methought my racing field lay under the skies)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/apni-jolangah-zair-e-asman-samjha-tha-main/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

I thought my racecourse lay beneath the sky;
I thought the play of dust and water was my world thereby.

When Your unveiling broke the spell upon my gaze,
I had thought the blue mantle was the sky's own blaze.

The caravan grew weary in the twists of air;
I thought sun, moon, and Jupiter companions there.

One leap of love has brought the tale to its end;
I thought this earth and sky had no bound or bend.

The veiled ones of longing told love's secret true;
The cry I thought restrained was a cry of longing too.

It was a weary traveler's cry of pain I heard,
Which I had thought the caravan's departure word.

Kalam 017: One Luminous Wisdom, One Demonstrative Wisdom

JSON title: Ek Danish-e-Noorani,....(Reason is either luminous,...)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ek-danish-e-noorani-ek-danish-e-burhani/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

One wisdom is luminous, another wisdom demonstrative;
Demonstrative wisdom multiplies wonder beyond measure.

Within this earthen form there is one thing, and that is Yours;
For me, guarding that one thing is a difficult endeavor.

What now, if my cry has reached the stars on high?
You Yourself had taught me this art of song to cry.

If the design is false, what profit can repetition gain?
Does the cheapness of Adam bring You pleasure again?

The West has taught me denial, left me faithless and astray;
Why are the scholars of this age a shame to Islam today?

The power to shatter fate still remains within this clay;
The fool they call a prisoner of fate has strength to break away.

You have your idol-houses, and I have mine as well;
Both sets of idols are of dust, both are doomed to fall.

Kalam 018: O Lord, This Passing World Is Lovely, Yet

JSON title: Ya Rab! Ye Jahan-e-Guzran Khoob Hai Lekin(Lovely, oh Lord, this fleeting world; but)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ya-rab-ye-jahan-e-guzran-khoob-hai-lekin/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 16 stanzas, 32 lines

O Lord, this passing world is lovely, yet why are the pure and skilled brought low?
Why are men of clean hearts and craft made objects of woe?

Though the moneylender shares a hand in its dominion and sway,
The world still calls the Western master its lord today.

You give the wise a blade of grass, while the flower field is granted to the few;
The garden of roses and poppies they receive in handfuls,
but what is given to you?

The church has kebab and crimson wine displayed;
What has the mosque besides sermons and counsel laid?

Your commands are true, but their interpreters, by their art,
Could turn the Quran, through twisting, into a dead book's part.

No one has seen the Paradise that is Yours and bright;
Every village of the West resembles Paradise to the sight.

For long my thought has wandered through the spheres above;
Now imprison it in the moon's caves, where it cannot rove.

Nature has granted me celestial jewels in generous measure;
I am of dust, yet keep no bond with dust as my treasure.

God-intoxicated dervish, neither Eastern nor Western am I;
My home is neither Delhi, Isfahan, nor Samarqand beneath the sky.

I say only what I understand and know to be true;
I am no fool of the mosque, nor a child of culture's view.

My own are displeased with me, and strangers are displeased as well;
I could never call the poison of Halahil sugar's sweet spell.

It is hard for a truth-seeing, truth-thinking servant to say
That a heap of straw is Mount Damavand, whatever others may say.

Even in Nimrod's fire my silence remains;
I am a believing servant, not a seed that crackles in flames.

Burning, far-seeing, discerning, and gentle in deed;
Free and bound, empty-pursed and content, I remain freed.

In every state my unchained heart is joyful and bright;
What can steal from a bud its delight in a smiling light?

Even before the Lord of Yazdan Iqbal could not stay mute;
Would anyone come and seal this bold servant's lips shut?

Kalam 019: All Nature's Vastness Cannot Contain My Longing

JSON title: Sama Sakta Nahin Pehna’ay Fitrat Mein Mera Soda(All Nature’s vastness cannot contain you, oh)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/sama-sakta-nahin-pehnaay-fitrat-mein-mera-soda/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

All nature's vastness cannot contain my longing;
O madness, perhaps your measure of the wilderness was wrong.

Through the self's power we can break this spell of color and scent;
This was the oneness that neither you nor I understood or meant.

Awaken vision, heedless one: revelation is nature's very face;
The river cannot live estranged from the wave it must embrace.

The pulpit's rivalry of knowledge and gnosis is mistaken sight;
It thinks the scaffold of Hallaj is its rival in the fight.

For God's pure servants, in rule or in slavery's chain,
If anything guards their armor, it is freedom from desire and gain.

O Gabriel, do not imitate my ecstasy and wine;
For ease-loving heavenly beings, remembrance, praise, and circling are enough and fine.

Kalam 020: I Have Seen Many a Wine-Shop East and West

JSON title: Bohat Dekhe Hain Main Ne Mashriq-o-Maghrib Ke May Khane(I have seen many a wine-shop East and West)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/bohat-dekhe-hain-main-ne-mashriq-o-maghrib-ke-maikhane/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 8 stanzas, 16 lines

I have seen many a wine-shop in East and West;
Here no cupbearer is born, there the wine lacks all zest.

Neither Iran nor Turan retains that band of the poor and free,
Those servants of poverty who brought Caesar and Chosroes to their knee.

This is the sanctuary's shaykh, who steals and sells for gain
The cloak of Bu Zar, the mantle of Awais, and Zahra's shawl again.

In the presence of Truth, Israfil has brought my case:
This servant may raise the Resurrection before its appointed place.

A voice came: what is this beside the world's upheaval and alarm?
"The Chinese seized the ihram, while Mecca slept in Bat'ha's calm."

The glass of present-day culture brims with the wine of "No";
But the cup of "Except" is not in the cupbearer's hands to show.

The swift hand of the plectrum-player has pressed it down with might;
Europe's lament still sounds in notes sunk far below the height.

From this same river rises that fierce, advancing wave,
By which the crocodiles' own dwelling is overturned and made a grave.

Kalam 021: What Is Slavery?

JSON title: Ghulami Kya Hai? Zauq-e-Husn-o-Zaibai Se Mehroomi Slavery—exile from the love of beauty

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ghulami-kya-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 11 stanzas, 22 lines

What is slavery? Exile from the taste of beauty and grace;
What free souls call beautiful—that alone is beauty's face.

How can one trust the insight of slaves?
In this world, only the free man's eye truly sees.

He is master of today who by his own courage
Has drawn tomorrow's pearl from the ocean of time.

The Frankish glassmaker's craft has turned water into stone;
My elixir has given glass the hardness of rock.

There have been Pharaohs, and there are still Pharaohs lying in wait for me;
But why grieve, when my sleeve holds the hand of Moses?

How could that spark be smothered beneath straw and brushwood,
Which Truth created for the reedbed's sake?

Love is seeing one's own self; love is guarding one's own self;
Love is free of the thresholds of Caesar and Chosroes.

What wonder if the Moon and Pleiades become my quarry?
“At the stirrup of the prosperous lord I have tied my head.”

That knower of ways, Seal of Messengers, Master of all, Muhammad ﷺ, who Gave the dust of the road the radiance of Sinai's valley;

In the gaze of love and ecstasy, he is first and he is last:
He is the Quran, he is the Criterion, he is Ya-Sin, he is Ta-Ha.

Out of respect for Sanai, I did not dive deep;
Otherwise, a hundred thousand pearls still remain in this sea of rubies.

Kalam 022: Who Is This Singer of Ghazals?

JSON title: Ye Kon Ghazal Khawan Hai, Pursouz-o-Nishat AngaizWho is this composer of ghazals, who is burningly passionate and cheerful?

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ye-kon-ghazal-khawan-hai-pur-soz-o-nishat-angaiz/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Who is this singer of ghazals, burning and joy-awakening,
Who makes the wise man's thought mingle with madness?

Though poverty bears a kingly manner,
The royalty of Parviz is unripe without the kingdom of Parviz.

In the Sufi's cell that poverty is no longer left
Whose charter is the lions' heart-blood.

O circle of dervishes, what sort of man of God should he be
Whose collar holds the tumult of resurrection?

Bright as a flame through the heat of remembrance,
Faster than lightning in the swiftness of thought!

Kingship brings forth the signs of madness;
Whether Timur or Chingez, they are Allah's knives.

Thus Iraq and Persia applaud my poetry:
This Indian unbeliever sheds blood without sword or spear.

Kalam 023: That Secret Word Which Taught Me Madness

JSON title: Woh Harf-e-Raaz Ke Mujh Ko Sikha Gaya Hai JanoonThe breath of Gabriel if God on me bestow

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/woh-harf-e-raaz-ke-mujh-ko-sikha-gaya-hai-junoon/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 9 stanzas, 18 lines

That secret word which taught me madness—
If God grants me Gabriel's breath, then I will speak.

What news of my destiny can a star give me?
It is itself despised and fallen in the vastness of the heavens.

What is life? The rapture of thought and vision;
The death of the self is the thought of countless kinds.

What a strange delight: having given me the taste of selfhood,
They wish that I should not remain within myself.

A pure conscience, a lofty gaze, the ecstasy of longing—
Not Qarun's wealth and treasure, not Plato's thought.

This lesson I received from Muhammad's ﷺ Ascension:
The heavens lie within the reach of human beings.

Perhaps this universe is still unfinished,
For the cry of "Be—and it is" comes without pause.

Your cure lies in the burning of Rumi's fire;
The spell of the Westerners has mastered your reason.

By His grace my gaze is luminous;
By His grace the Nile flows within my cup.

◆ Kalam 024: O World of Water, Dust, and Wind ◆

JSON title: Alam-e-Aab-o-Khaak-o-Baad !

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/alam-e-aab-o-khak-o-bad-sir-e-ayan-hai-tu-ke-main/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 4 stanzas, 8 lines

O world of water, dust, and wind! You are the manifest secret—or am I?
You are the world of what lies hidden from the eye—or am I?

That night of pain, burning, and grief which they call life:
You are its dawn—or am I? You are its call to prayer—or am I?

For whose appearing do evening and dawn stay busy journeying?
You are the heavy burden upon the shoulder of time—or am I?

You are a handful of dust, sightless; I am a handful of dust that sees itself;
For the field of being, you are flowing water—or am I?

Kalam 025: You Are Still Upon the Road

JSON title: (لندن میں لکھّے گئے)Tu Abhi Reh Guzar Mein Hai, Qaid-e-Maqam Se Guzer(London Mein Likhe Gye)(Written in London)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tu-abhi-reh-guzar-mein-hai/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

You are still upon the road; pass beyond the prison of place;
Pass beyond Egypt and Hijaz, Persia and Syria's space.

The one whose deed is free of gain receives a different reward;
Pass beyond houris and tents, beyond wine and cup, O heart.

Though the beauty of the West's spring is very dear,
O high-winged little bird, pass beyond grain and snare.

Your blow cleaves mountains; through you East and West are opened wide;
Like the crescent sword, pass beyond the pleasure of the sheath.

Your imam is without presence, your prayer without delight;
Pass beyond such prayer, pass beyond such an imam.

Kalam 026: The Dervish Life of Free Men Is the Keeper of Secrets

JSON title: Ameen-e-Raaz Hai Mardan-e-Hur Ki DarveshiThe free by dint of faqr life's secrets can disclose

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/amin-e-raaz-hai-mardan-e-hur-ki-darvaishi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

The dervish life of free men is the keeper of secrets;
It shares a kinship with Gabriel.

Who knows how many ships the heedlessness
Of jurist, Sufi, and poet has already sunk?

A fiery gaze that makes lions lose their wits—
Not a cold sigh, meek as a sheep's and lamb's.

When Love's physician saw me, he said:
Your illness is merely desire without a thorn.

That which they call the pure soul is something else;
This color and moisture, this blood, bread, and water, are excess.

◆ Kalam 027: Once More the Mountain and Foothill Glow with Poppy Lamps ◆

JSON title: Phir Charagh-E-Lala Se Roshan Huway Koh-O-Daman
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/phir-charagh-e-lala-se-roshan-huay-koh-o-daman/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 9 stanzas, 18 lines

Once more the mountain and foothill glow with poppy lamps;
Once more the garden bird urges me to sing.

Are these flowers in the desert, or fairies in ranks upon ranks,
With violet, blue, and yellow garments?

The morning wind has set a dew-drop pearl upon the rose leaf,
And the sunbeam makes that pearl shine.

For the heedless beauty to unveil itself,
If forests are dearer than cities, then forests are better.

Dive into your own self and find the trace of life;
If you will not become mine, then do not—but become your own.

The world's inward life: burning, rapture, impulse, longing;
The world's bodily life: profit, commerce, deceit, and craft.

The wealth of the inward world, once gained, never departs;
The wealth of the body is a shadow: wealth comes, wealth goes.

In the inward world I found no rule of the European;
In the inward world I saw neither shaykh nor Brahmin.

This saying of the Qalandar has melted me to water:
When you bowed before another, neither soul nor body was yours.

Kalam 028: In the Muslim's Blood Lies the Art of Winning Hearts

JSON title: (کابل میں لکھّے گئے)Musalman Ke Lahoo Mein Hai, Saliqa Dil Nawazi Ka(Kabul Mein Likhe Gye)(Written in Kabul)

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/musalman-ke-lahoo-mein-hai-saliqa-dil-nawazi-ka/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

In the Muslim's blood lies the art of winning hearts;
Forbearance is the universal beauty of men of valor.

O Lord, I have a complaint against the masters of the school:
They teach the falcon's children the lesson of playing in dust.

The way of seeing of those long-caged birds has changed;
For I have laid bare the method of falconry.

The Qalandar possesses nothing but the two words, There is no god but Allah;
The city's jurist is Qarun of the Hijazi lexicons.

I know nothing of the tales of wine, flask, and cup;
Do not ask stone-cleavers to make glass.

O Iqbal, where did you learn this dervish life,
That kings speak of your indifference to the world?

Kalam 029: Love Brings Rise and Fall to the Song of Life

JSON title: Ishq Se Paida Nawa'ay Zindagi Mein Zeer-O-Bamm(Through Love the song of Life begets its rhythmic flow)
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ishq-se-paida-nuwaay-zindagi-mein-zair-o-bam/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Love brings rise and fall to the song of life;
Love keeps the fire of breath alive in images of clay.

Love enters every fiber of a human being,
As morning wind's moisture enters the branch of a rose.

If you do not know your Provider, you become dependent on kings;
If you know Him, Dara and Jam are beggars at your door.

Freedom of the heart is kingship; a belly's provision is death;
The choice is in your hands: heart, or belly?

O Muslim, ask your heart, do not ask the mullah:
Why has the Sanctuary become empty of Allah's servants?

◆ Kalam 030: The Gaze Is Not Pure When the Heart Is Without Fire ◆

JSON title: Dil Soz Se Khali Hai, Nigah Pak Nahin Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/dil-soz-se-khali-hai-nigah-pak-nahin-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The heart is empty of fire, the gaze is not pure;
Then what wonder that you are not fearless?

The taste of revelation too lies hidden in this dust;
Heedless one, you are not merely a man of understanding.

That eye lit by the kohl of Europe
Is clever and skilled in speech, but it is not tearful.

What do Sufi and mullah know of my madness?
The hem of their robe is not yet torn.

How long will my dust remain enslaved to the stars?
Either I am not, or the heavens do not revolve.

I am lightning; my gaze is upon mountain and wilderness;
For me, straw and chaff are not worthy.

The world is only the inheritance of the life-risking believer;
He is no believer who is not bound to the Master of the Universe.

Bal-e-Jibreel: Poetic English Translation

◆ Kalam 031: Thousands of Fears, Yet the Tongue Is the Heart's Companion ◆

JSON title: Hazar Khof Ho Lekin Zuban Ho Dil Ki Rafeeq
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/hazar-khof-ho-lekin-zuban-ho-dil-ki-rafeeq-2/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Though a thousand fears surround me, my tongue keeps faith with my heart;
This has been the qalandars' way since the Dawn of Eternity.

Why is the crowd so thick within the tavern?
For this alone: the Pir of the Magians is a gracious man.

They cannot cure the weakness of faith with their subtle arguments,
Though Razi's fine points may be poor, they are still precise.

The simple disciple has wept himself into repentance;
May God grant the Sheikh this same grace.

Adam remains captive in that ancient enchantment;
In his embrace still lie the idols of an age long past.

For me, even a confession spoken by the tongue is enough;
A thousand thanks that the mullahs are men who affirm the truth.

When there is love, even disbelief becomes Muslim faith;
When there is none, the Muslim man is a kafir and a heretic.

◆ Kalam 032: Ask Whether Nature Bears Witness to Your Acceptance ◆

JSON title: Pooch Iss Se Ke Maqbool Hai Fitrat Ki Gawahi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/pooch-iss-se-ke-maqbool-hai-fitrat-ki-gawahi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Ask it: does nature bear witness that you are accepted?
Are you one who has reached the destination, or a traveler gone astray?

If the Muslim is a kafir, he is neither sovereign nor dervish;
If he is a believer, even in dervishhood he exercises sovereignty.

If you are a kafir, you place your trust in the sword;
If a believer, you fight as a warrior even without a sword.

If you are a kafir, you are subject to destiny, O Muslim;
If you are a believer, you yourself are the Divine decree.

I have torn open even the veil of secrets;
Your illness of blindness is ancient.

Kalam 033: These European Houris, the Veil of Heart and Sight

JSON title: Ye Hooriyan-E-Farangi, Dil-O-Nazar Ka Hijab
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ye-hooriyan-e-farangi/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

These European houris are a veil over heart and sight,
A Western paradise, its visions with their feet in the stirrups.

Carry the vessel of heart and sight with care;
The moon and stars are whirlpools in the sea of being.

It cannot be contained within the world of sound and speech;
The eternal subtlety is the lament of harp and rebab.

The Sufi has taught the city's jurist the ways of the khanqah,
And the jurist has been ruined by the Sufi.

That prostration before which the soul of earth would tremble,
The pulpit and the mihrab now yearn for it.

I did not hear in Egypt or Palestine that call to prayer
Which once gave the mountains a shiver like quicksilver.

O breeze of Cordoba, perhaps this is your effect:
My song carries the fire and delight of the age of youth.

◆ Kalam 034: The Farooqi Heart Awake, the Karari Heart Awake ◆

JSON title: Dil Baidar Farooqi, Dil Baidar Karari
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/dil-e-baidar-farooqi/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

For Adam's copper, the heart's awakening is alchemy;
Awakeness of heart is the true philosopher's stone.

Create an awakened heart, for while the heart lies asleep,
Neither your blow is keen, nor is mine.

Its trace in the desert is found by a keen scent;
Conjecture and guesswork cannot bring the Tatar gazelle to hand.

How long shall I restrain my sigh from this fear,
That the Magian-born may carry away the spark of your fortune?

O God, where shall these simple-hearted servants of Yours go?
Dervishhood too is cunning, and sovereignty too is cunning.

Modern civilization has granted me such freedom
That outwardly I am free, but inwardly imprisoned.

O Master of Yathrib, bring healing to my affliction;
My wisdom is European, and my faith wears the Zunnari belt.

Kalam 035: In the Boldness and Fierceness of the Self, No Pride or Vanity

JSON title: Khudi Ki Shokhi-O-Tundi Mein Kubr-O-Naaz Nahin
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khudi-ki-shokhi-o-tundi-mein-kubr-o-naaz-nahin/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

In the boldness and fierceness of the self there is neither pride nor vanity;
Even when there is pride, it is not a joyless, submissive need.

The gaze of love seeks a heart alive;
A dead quarry is not worthy of the royal falcon.

My song bears none of the beloved's grace,
For the trumpet-call of Israfil is not a caress to the heart.

I shall not ask wine from the Saqi of Europe,
For this is not the way of the pure and fearless lovers.

Love's dominion has never become common in the world;
The reason is that love does not shape itself to the age.

One ceaseless restlessness, whether absence or presence;
If I say it myself, my story is not long.

If you have the taste, read the Zabur of Ajam in solitude;
The midnight lament is not voiceless before the secret.

◆ Kalam 036: An Unworthy Commander, a Broken-Ranked Army ◆

JSON title: Mir-e-Sipah Na Saza, Lashkariyan Shakista Saf
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/mir-e-sipah-na-saza-lashkar-yaan-shakistah-saf/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

An unworthy commander, an army in broken ranks—
Ah, that half-drawn arrow with no mark for its target!

In Your ocean there is no pearl of life anywhere;
Wave after wave I have searched, shell after shell I have seen.

Raise your hands from love of idols, plunge into your self;
Do not waste the heart's blood on the temple's forms and colors.

How can I speak plainly of the secret place of death and love?
Love is an honorable death; a life of dishonorable death.

The companionship of the Roman Master made this secret plain to me:
A hundred thousand sages hide their hands in their collars;
one Moses stands head in hand.

If one who enters the battle were like Moses the Word-bearer,
Even now a cry of "Fear not!" rises from the tree of Sinai.

The splendor of Western wisdom could not dazzle me;
The dust of Madinah and Najaf is kohl for my eye.

Kalam 037: Though Winter's Wind Held the Sword's Sharpness

JSON title: Zmastani Hawa Mein Garcha Thi Shamsheer Ki Taizi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/zamistani-hawa-mein-garcha-thi-shamsheer-ki-taizi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Though winter's wind held the sword's sharpness,
Even in London I did not abandon the manners of rising before dawn.

Sometimes my warm speech was the gathering's capital;
Sometimes my reserve left everyone bewildered.

If the worker's hands held the reins of affairs, what then?
The path of the mountain-hewer holds those same stratagems of Parviz.

Whether it is the majesty of kingship or the democratic spectacle,
When faith is severed from politics, only Chingez remains.

In the realm of Great Rome, Delhi comes back to me:
The same lesson, the same grandeur, the same captivating glory.

Kalam 038: What Is This Ancient Temple but a Heap of Straw?

JSON title: Ye Dair-E-Kuhan Kya Hai, Anbaar-E-Khas-O-Khashaak

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ye-dair-e-kuhan-hai-anbar-e-khas-o-khashaak/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

What is this ancient temple but a heap of straw and chaff?
It is hard to pass through it without a cry of fire in the heart.

The tale of love's quarry is not a long one:
The pleasure is the arrow's sting, not the ease of the saddle-strap.

What was lost in the meaning of the seventy-two sects?
You will not understand until perception is stripped of color.

One is the law of Islam, and one is the passion of Islam;
The passion of Islam is the secret of the highest heavens.

O wise traveler, without the passion of Islam,
There is neither a road of action nor a branch of faith made moist.

Love's secrets are boldness and fearless daring;
Not every longing is bold, nor every passion fearless.

My madness will not sit idle on the Day of Resurrection:
Either my own collar torn, or the hem of Yazdan torn.

Kalam 039: Perfection Is Not Abandoning Water and Clay

JSON title: Kamal-E-Tark Nahin Aab-O-Gil Se Mehjoori

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kamal-e-tark-nahin-aab-o-gill-se-mahjoori/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Perfection is not to renounce water and clay;
Perfection is to master the earthly and the luminous.

O people of the circle, I have turned away from such poverty:
Your poverty is destitution and sickness.

Neither fit for poverty nor fit for sovereignty is that people
Who have squandered the treasure of Timur.

If the moon-faced Saqi does not listen, all the better;
The plea of excuse is the measure of companionship's warmth.

The sage, the knower, and the Sufi are all drunk on manifestation;
Who knows that revelation itself is the essence of concealment?

If they turn their attention to you, even the cage's corner is freedom;
If they do not, even the garden court is a place of compulsion.

Do not be offended—test it once and see:
Europe's heart is diseased, while its intellect is full to overflowing.

Kalam 040: Reason Is Not Far from the Threshold

JSON title: Aqal Go Astan Se Door Nahin

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/aqal-go-aastan-se-door-nahin/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 9 stanzas, 18 lines

Reason, they say, is not far from the threshold;
Yet presence is not written in its destiny.

Ask God also for a seeing heart;
The light of the eye is not the light of the heart.

There is rapture in knowledge too, but this is a Paradise
In which no houri dwells.

What a wonder that in this age
There is not even one possessor of rapture.

One madness is conscious as well;
Another madness is not conscious.

The heart's life is impatience—
Ah, that heart which knows no impatience!

Your death's secret is absence;
If you are alive, you are not without presence.

Every pearl has broken open its shell;
You alone are not ready to reveal yourself.

I say "Show me" as well, but this is not
The discourse of Moses and the Mount.

◆ Kalam 041: The Self Is a Sea Whose Shore Is Nowhere ◆

JSON title: Khudi Woh Behar Hai Jis Ka Koi Kinara Nahin

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khudi-woh-beher-hai-jis-ka-koi-kinara-nahin/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The Self is a sea whose shore is nowhere to be found;
Take it for a stream, and no remedy can be found.

You can shatter the spell of the sky's revolving dome;
This is a glass-built edifice, not a rugged stone.

We plunge into the Self, then rise again;
But such courage is not for the man who counts for nothing.

How can a star-reader know your station?
You are living dust, not a star's obedient one.

Here are Paradise, the houris, and Gabriel too;
Your gaze has yet to learn the boldness of seeing.

My madness knew the age through and through;
It gave me a garment that is not torn to shreds.

What a wonder: nature is miserly in the very heart of grace;
The pure ruby holds fire, but it holds no spark.

◆ Kalam 042: The Dawn Wind Has Brought Me This Message ◆

JSON title: Ye Peyam De Gyi Hai Mujhe Bad-e-Subahgahi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ye-peyam-de-gayi-hai-mujhe-bad-e-subah-gahi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The dawn wind has brought me this message:
For those who know the Self, kingship is their station.

Your life comes from it, your honor comes from it;
If the Self remains, there is royalty; if it goes, disgrace.

You gave me no sign of the destination, O sage;
Why should I reproach you? You are neither guide nor traveler.

Within my circle of speech are still under instruction
Those beggars who know the ways of the crooked crown.

These matters are delicate; if it is Your will, do it;
For I found no pleasure in this monastic way.

You are the hunter of Huma; your beginning has only begun;
This world of bird and fish is not without wisdom.

Whether you are Arab or Ajam, your La ilaha illallah
Is a strange tongue until your heart bears witness.

Kalam 043: Your Gaze Is Mean, Your Hand Is Short

JSON title: Teri Nigah Firomaya, Hath Hai Kotah

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/teri-nigah-firo-maya-hath-hai-kotah/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Your gaze is mean, your hand is short;
Your fault is the fault of a lofty palm.

The schoolmen have strangled your cry;
How can the call of La ilaha illallah arise?

The Divine is lost within the Self; seek it, heedless one;
This alone is now the counsel for your work.

Ask a bare-cloaked dervish about the heart's speech;
May God make you aware of your station.

You stand bareheaded: bring forth a lofty resolve;
Here a cap is only for the head of the Shaheen.

Neither the turning of the stars nor the play of the heavens:
The death of the Self is your fall from fortune and rank.

I rose grief-stricken from school and lodge;
There was no life, no love, no gnosis, no vision.

Kalam 044: Reason Has Knowledge and Nothing More

JSON title: Khird Ke Paas Khabar Ke Siwa Kuch Aur Nahin

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kirad-ke-paas-khabar-ke-siwa-kuch-aur-nahin/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Reason has knowledge, and nothing more;
Your cure is vision, and nothing more.

Every station has another station beyond it;
Your life is nothing but the joy of journeying.

You are precious through guarding the Self; otherwise,
Within the pearl is nothing but the pearl's own water.

If blood is circulating in your veins, what is gained?
Life is nothing but the fire of the liver.

O bride of the tulip, veiling yourself from me is not fitting;
For I am nothing but the morning breeze.

What the merchants of the West deem a dead stock,
That thing is nothing but the treasure of art.

Iqbal is most generous, though bereft;
His gift is nothing but a flame's spark.

Kalam 045: What Is Alexander's Glory to the Gaze of Faqr?

JSON title: Nigah-e-Faqr Mein Shan-e-Sikandari Kya Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/nigah-e-faqar-mein-shan-e-sikandari-kya-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

What is Alexander's glory to the gaze of faqr?
What is Caesarhood when its tribute is a beggar's due?

You place your hopes in idols and despair of God;
Tell me, what is kufr if not this?

Heaven has granted lordship to those
Who know nothing of the manner of serving a servant.

The heart's verdict comes through the gaze alone;
If the gaze lacks boldness, what is beauty?

For this fault the wrath of kings falls upon me:
I know what remains after Alexander's glory.

Who does not yearn for sovereignty? Yet
What sovereignty is that in which the Self must die?

The world has welcomed my qalandari;
Otherwise, what are my verses, what is poetry?

◆ Kalam 046: Neither for Earth nor Sky Are You ◆

JSON title: Na Tu Zameen Ke Liye Hai Na Asman Ke Liye

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/na-tu-zameen-ke-liye-hai-na-asman-ke-liye/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 8 stanzas, 16 lines

You are not for earth, nor are you for the sky;
The world is for you, but you are not for the world.

Reason and heart are sparks from Love's flame;
That is for thorn and chaff, this for the reedbed.

This garden is the place where sigh and lament are nurtured;
It is neither for strolling among roses nor for a nest.

How long will your vessel remain in Ravi, Nile, and Euphrates,
When it is meant for the shoreless sea!

Those who once showed the stars the road
Now yearn for some man who knows the way.

A lofty gaze, heart-winning speech, a soul aflame—
This is the caravan-master's provision for the journey.

It was a little matter, but Ajam's anxiety
Made it larger, merely to adorn the tale.

In my throat is a song that troubles Gabriel,
Carefully kept for the placeless realm.

Kalam 047: O Captive of Place, You Are Not Far from La-Makan

JSON title: Tu Ae Aseer-E-Makan! La-Makan Se Door Nahin
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tu-ae-aseer-e-makan/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 9 lines

O captive of place, you are not far from La-Makan;
That place of manifestation is not far from your dust-vessel.

That meadow knows no fear of autumn;
Do not grieve: it is not far from your nest.

This is the essence of the dervish's knowledge: life
Is a leaping arrow, yet not far from the bow.

Your expanse lies just beyond the moon and Pleiades.

Rise: this station is not far from the sky.
Do not say to the guide, “Leave me alone”;

◆ Kalam 048: Reason Gave Me a Philosophic Gaze ◆

JSON title: Khirad Ne Mujh Ko Atta Ki Nazar Hakeemana

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kirad-ne-mujh-ko-atta-ki-nazar-hakeemana/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Reason gave me a philosophic gaze;
Love taught me the tavern-keeper's discourse.

There is no wine, no flask, no measured round of cups;
The beloved's gathering is made radiant by the gaze alone.

Do not mistake my troubled song for poetry;
I am the confidant of the tavern's inward secret.

See the bud: it thirsts for the dawn breeze;
Within this lies the whole tale of my heart.

Tell me: is this absence, or is it presence?
All are familiar here; I alone am a stranger.

Let me stay another day in Farang,
If this wilderness can hold my madness.

Iqbal passed with ease beyond the station of reason;
In the station of longing, that wise one was lost.

◆ Kalam 049: At Last the Heavens Answer the Cries ◆

JSON title: Aflak Se Ata Hai Nalon Ka Jawab Akhir

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/aflak-se-ata-hai-nalon-ka-jawab-akhir/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

From the heavens comes the answer to cries at last;
At last they address us, at last the veils rise.

In love's condition there is no difference at all:
Burning, heat, and fever at first; burning, heat, and fever at last.

I tell you what the destiny of nations is:
Sword and spear at first; peacock and rebab at last.

The customs of Europe's tavern are strange:
They bring ecstasy first, they give wine at last.

What is Nadir's pomp, what is Timurid splendor?
All their records drown in pure wine at last.

The hour of seclusion has passed; the hour of manifestation has come;
The cloud's embrace is about to be split by lightning at last.

Restraint was very hard before this flood of meaning;
At last the Qalandar spoke the secrets of the Book.

◆ Kalam 050: Everything Is Absorbed in Self-Display ◆

JSON title: Har Cheez Hai Mehew-e-Khud Numai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/har-cheez-hai-mehew-e-khud-numai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 8 stanzas, 16 lines

Everything is absorbed in self-display;
Every particle is a martyr to Divine Majesty.

Life without the relish of self-revelation is death;
In building the self lies godhood.

By the strength of the self, a grain of sand becomes a mountain;
By the weakness of the self, a mountain becomes a grain of sand.

The stars wander, with little fellowship among them;
Separation is the destiny of existence.

This yellow-faced moon of the late watch of night
Knows neither secret nor the intimacy of a lover.

Your heart is your lamp;
You yourself are your own light.

You alone are the Truth in this world;
All else is the display of alchemy.

These desert thorns untie the knots;
Lessen your complaint of going barefoot.

Kalam 051: Is It Someone's Miracle, or the Turning of Time?

JSON title: Ejaz Hai Kisi Ka Ya Gardish-e-Zamana!

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ejaz-hai-kissi-ka-ya-gardish-e-zamana/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Is it someone's miracle, or the turning of time?
Asia's enchanted Western spell has broken.

From building a nest I learned this secret:
For the people of song, the nest itself is lightning.

This is servitude to God; that is servitude to beggary:
Become a servant of God, or a servant of the age!

Do not be heedless of the self; stand guard over it—
Perhaps you too are the threshold of some Sanctuary.

O heir of La ilaha! Nothing remains in you
Of the lover's speech, the conqueror's character.

Hearts once trembled in their breasts at your gaze;
Your qalandar-like passion has been lost.

Perhaps Iqbal knows the secret of the Sanctuary;
The manner of his speech bears the intimacy of its keepers.

◆ Kalam 052: What Should I Ask the Wise About My Beginning? ◆

JSON title: Khirad Mandon Se Kya Poochun

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khirad-mandon-se-kya-poochun-ke-meri-ibtada-kya-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

What should I ask the wise of wit: what was my beginning?
For I remain absorbed in thought: what will be my end?

Raise the self so high that, before each destiny,
God Himself asks the servant: tell Me, what is your desire?

What is the station of speech if I am an alchemist?
This very burning breath is my alchemy; what is my alchemy?

Let the depths of destiny appear to me within it;
Ask me not, O companion, what that kohl-dark eye may be.

Had that European mystic lived in this age,
Iqbal would have taught him what the station of Divine Majesty is.

The dawn-song has made my liver bleed;
O God, what is the sin for which this is the punishment?

Kalam 053: When Love Teaches the Manners of Self-Awareness

JSON title: Jab Ishq Sikhata Hai Adab-e-Khud Agahi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/jab-ishq-sikhata-hai-adab-e-khud-agahi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

When love teaches the manners of self-awareness,
The secrets of imperial sovereignty open before slaves.

Whether Attar, Rumi, Razi, or Ghazali,
Nothing comes to hand without a dawn-splitting sigh.

Do not despair of them, O wise guide!
They strive little, but the travelers are not without taste.

O bird of the heavenly realm! Better death than that sustenance
By which your flight grows weak.

Better than Dara and Alexander is that dervish man
Whose dervishhood bears the scent of Asadullah.

The code of young men is truth-speaking and fearlessness;
Allah's lions know no fox-like cowardice.

Kalam 054: The Message of Midnight Sighs Has Come Again

JSON title: Mujhe Aah-o-Faghan-e-Neem Shab Ka Phir Peyam Aya

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/mujhe-aah-o-fighan-e-neem-shab-ka-phir-peyam-aya/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

The message of midnight sigh and lament has come to me again;
Halt, O traveler, perhaps another difficult station has arrived.

Dive yourself a little into destiny's depths;
For from this field of war I have come forth a naked sword.

Who wrote this line upon the mosque's mihrab?
These simpletons fell into prostration when the hour of standing came.

Come, O watcher who came to see the spectacle of my poverty;
That gathering rose the moment the distant cup reached me.

Iqbal gave the Muslims of India his own burning pain;
He was a comfort-loving man, yet he came to serve the comfort-lovers.

I kept seeking Iqbal for years;
After a long while, at last that Shaheen came beneath the snare.

Kalam 055: Without the Uprising of Longing, I Do Not Remain

JSON title: Na Ho Tughyan-e-Mushtaqi To Main Rehta Nahin Baqi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/na-ho-tughyan-e-mushtaqi-to-main-rehta-nahin-baqi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Without the uprising of longing, I do not remain;
What is my life? This very uprising of longing.

Nature keeps compelling me, again and again, to sing;
Perhaps someone who knows pain still remains in the gathering.

That fire can still burn your nest today;
If your longing is not sincere, then what complaint against the Saqi?

Do not judge the West by its brilliance;
The brilliance of this jewel comes from electric lamps.

No surges of world-conquering zeal rise in hearts
If a world-embracing manner does not arise in the eyes.

Even in autumn, how could I have fallen within the hunter's reach?
The sparse leaves of my nest betrayed me.

Plans will be overturned, destinies will change;
It is reality, not the creative power of my imagination.

Kalam 056: Set Nature Before Wisdom

JSON title: Fitrat Ko Khird Ke Ru-Ba-Ru Kar

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/fitrat-ko-khirad-ke-ru-ba-ru-kar/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Set nature face to face with wisdom;
Conquer the realm of color and fragrance.

You have lost your selfhood—
Seek out the thing that you have lost.

The stars' expanse is boundless;
Make this station, too, the object of your longing.

The houris of your garden stand unveiled;
Stitch up the torn robes of rose and tulip.

Nature is not without taste, though—
Do what it could not do!

Kalam 057: These Elders of Church and Sanctuary, Alas, This Helplessness

JSON title: Ye Peeran-e-Kalisa-o-Haram, Ae Waye Majboori!
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ye-piran-e-kaleesa-o-haram-ae-waye-majboori/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

These elders of church and Sanctuary—alas, this helplessness!
The fruit of their bitter toil is the darkness of hearts.

Awaken certainty, O heedless one! Through certainty comes
That dervishhood before which the emperor bows.

Now wonder, now rapture, now the dawn's sigh—
My pain of separation changes into a thousand hues.

The matters of love and rapture lie beyond the reach of reason;
This much I understand: distance is the heart's death.

They are compelled to manifest by the intoxication of their beauty;
Within the sight of my eyes lie the causes of concealment.

No one could understand the logic of destiny, otherwise
The Ottomans would not be lesser Turks than Timur's Turks.

How did Iqbal come into the hands of the dervishes of the Sanctuary?
The camphor Shaheen is not granted to kings and sultans.

Kalam 058: Once More the Present Wisdom Has Wrought the Ancient Spell

JSON title: Taza Phir Danish-e-Hazir Ne Kiya Sahar-e-Qadeem
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/taza-phir-danish-e-hazir-ne-kiya-sehar-e-qadeem/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Once more the wisdom of the present has wrought the ancient spell;
In this age, no passing beyond is possible without Moses' staff.

Reason is cunning—it can assume a hundred forms;
Poor love is neither mullah, ascetic, nor sage.

The ease of the destination is forbidden to love's poor;
All are travelers, though outwardly they seem settled.

You move heavily, burdened by grief for provisions and the journey;
You can cross mountain and river like the breeze.

The dervish man's treasure is freedom and death;
Is this treasury of gold and silver for someone else's sake?

Kalam 059: Beyond the Stars Lie Other Worlds as Well

JSON title: Sitaron Se Agay Jahan Aur Bhi Hain

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/sitaron-se-agay-jahan-aur-bhi-hain/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Beyond the stars lie other worlds as well;
There are still more trials of love to come.

These expanses are not empty of life;
Here are hundreds of caravans as well.

Do not be content with the world of color and fragrance;
There are other gardens, other nests as well.

If one nest has been lost, what grief?
There are other stations of sigh and lament as well.

You are a Shaheen; flight is your vocation;
There are other skies before you as well.

Do not remain entangled in this day and night,
For you have other times and spaces as well.

The days are gone when I stood alone in the gathering;
Now there are other keepers of my secrets here as well.

Kalam 060: The West Seeks the Perpetuity of Worldly Pleasure

JSON title: (فرانس میں لکھّے گئے)Dhoond Raha Hai Farang Aysh-e-Jahan Ka Dawam

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/dhoond-raha-hai-farang-aysh-e-jahan-ka-dawam/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The West seeks the perpetuity of worldly pleasure—
Alas, the raw desire, alas, the raw desire!

The elder of the Sanctuary heard my account and said:
Your lament is ripe now; no longer hold it in your heart.

Though Moses said, “Show me,” I do not say, “Show me”;
The demand was fitting for him, but forbidden for me.

Though the cry of those who see unveils the secret,
The way of the reveller can never become common.

In the Sufi circle there is remembrance, dry and without fire or music;
I too remained thirsty, and you too remained thirsty.

Love is your limit, love is my limit;
You are still unfinished, and I too am still unfinished.

Alas, you have lost the secret of dervishhood;
Otherwise, the dervish's wealth is the kingdom of Rome and Syria.

Bal-e-Jibreel: Poetic English Translation

This manuscript translates kalams 061-095 in JSON order from content/books/bal-e-jibreel.json*. The Urdu field is the semantic source; the transliteration field verifies stanza and line traceability.*

Kalam 061: If the Self Is Made Firm by Knowledge

JSON title: Khudi Ho Ilm Se Muhkam To Ghairat-e-Jibreel

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khudi-ho-ilm-se-mohkam-to-ghairat-e-jibreel/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

If the self is firm through knowledge, it is Gabriel's honor;
If firm through love, it is Israfeel's trumpet-call.

I know the torment of present-day knowledge,
For I was cast into this fire like Khalil.

The caravan is deceived by the destination; otherwise,
The joy of departure surpasses the comfort of arrival.

If you lack vision, do not sit in my circle of speech;
For the subtleties of selfhood are like a true-forged sword.

Those lessons of the West return to me today:
Where is the bliss of Presence, where the veil of proof?

It is a dark night; you are parted from your caravan;
For you, my song's flame is a lantern.

The tale of the Sanctuary is poor, simple, and colorful;
Its end is Husayn, its beginning Ismail.

Kalam 062: The Beauty of Thought in the Schools

JSON title: Maktabon Mein Kahin Raanayi-e-Afkaar Bhi Hai?

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/maktabon-mein-kahin-raanai-e-afkar-bhi-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Is there anywhere in the schools a beauty of thought?
Is there anywhere in the cloisters a delight of secrets?

The wayfarer's destination is far, and hard as well;
Is there a caravan-leader in this caravan?

This struggle of faith and homeland rises beyond Khayber;
Is there any Haidar the Daring in this age?

Beyond knowledge's boundary, for the believing servant,
There is the joy of longing, and the blessing of vision.

The tavern elder says: Europe's palace
Is weak in foundation, and a mirror-wall as well!

Kalam 063: The Event Behind the Veil of the Heavens

JSON title: Hadsa Woh Jo Abhi Parda-e-Aflak Mein Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/hadsa-woh-jo-abhi-pardaay-aflak-mein-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

The event still hidden behind the veils of the heavens
Has its reflection in my mirror of perception.

Not in the star, nor in the turning heavens;
Your destiny lies in my fearless cry.

Either my sigh contains no living spark,
Or your dry grass and refuse still hold a little moisture.

What wonder if, through my dawn-hour song,
The fire within your dust should come alive?

This very dust will shatter the spell of night and day,
Though it lies tangled in the twists of destiny.

Kalam 064: The Passionate Heat Remained No More in the Sufi Circle

JSON title: Raha Na Halqa-e-Sufi Mein Souz-e-Mushtaqi
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/raha-na-halqa-e-sufi-mein-soz-e-mushtaqi/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

No heat remained in the Sufi circle of longing;
Only tales of miracles were left behind.

The Sultan's palace lies ruined, the dervish's cloister too;
Alas, the throne and prayer-mat: the height of trickery.

One day the Judge of Resurrection will be shamed
By the plain leaves of the Sufi's and mullah's book.

Not Chinese, nor Arab; neither Roman nor Syrian;
The man of horizons could fit in neither world.

The intoxication of the night-drinking is past, but
The Saqi's enchantment still pricks within hearts.

Bear my bitter speech in the garden,
For even poison sometimes performs the work of an antidote.

Dearer than the wealth of prince and sultan
Is the verse in which lightning's heat and brilliance burn.

Kalam 065: No Collar Was Torn by Its Force

JSON title: Huwa Na Zor Se Uss Ke Koi Greban Chaak

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/huwa-na-zor-se-uss-ke-koi-gireban-chaak/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

No collar was torn by its force,
Though the madness of the West was cunning too.

With wine of certainty, life's conscience is aflame;
O Lord, let this fire-water be the seminary's lot.

All these await the rise of earth-born Adam:
This Milky Way, these stars, these blue heavens.

Is this the whole universe of the present age--
A bright mind, a darkened heart, and a fearless gaze?

If you are sightless, this too blocks the gaze;
Otherwise the believer is fire, and the world dry grass and refuse.

The age has taken reason for its guiding torch;
Who knows that madness too possesses understanding?

The whole world is the believing man's inheritance;
The point of "Were it not for you" bears witness to my verse.

Kalam 066: Thus the Single Pearl Does Not Come to Hand

JSON title: Yun Hath Nahin Ata Woh Gohar-e-Yak Dana

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/yun-hath-nahin-ata-vo-gohar-e-yak-dana/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

Thus the single pearl does not come to hand:
O manly courage, one-heartedness and freedom!

Either the world-conquering law of Sanjar and Tughral,
Or the kingly manner of the dervish-man.

Either Farabi's wonder, or Rumi's fire and force,
Either the sage's thought, or the passion of Kaleem.

Either the fox-cunning of reason, or love's hand of God,
Either Europe's stratagem, or the Turkic assault.

Either Muslim law, or guardianship of the temple,
Or the drunken cry, whether Kaaba or idol-house.

In intoxication, poverty, kingship, or slavery,
Nothing succeeds without the boldness of a free spirit.

Kalam 067: Neither in Throne and Crown nor in Army and Force

JSON title: Na Takht-o-Taaj Mein Ne Lashkar-o-Sipah Mein Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/na-takht-o-taj-mein-ne-lashkar-o-sipah-mein-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

Neither in throne and crown, nor in army and force,
Is found the secret that lives in the dervish's court.

The world is an idol-house, and the man of truth is Khalil;
This is the point hidden in "There is no god but Allah."

That world is yours which you bring into being;
These stones and bricks are not the world within your sight.

Beyond the moon and stars lies the station that is his;
That handful of dust still wanders the roads.

From the gods of land and sea I have received this news:
Europe is caught in a flood without shore.

Seek your fortune in its open skies;
The new world is present in my dawn-born sigh.

Count my little gourd a treasure, for pure wine
Is found no longer in the seminary, nor in the dervish lodge.

Kalam 068: Nature Granted Me No Cunning Thought

JSON title: Fitrat Ne Na Bakhsha Mujhe Andesha’ay Chalak

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/fitrat-ne-na-bakhsha-mujhe-andeshaay-chalak/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 4 stanzas, 8 lines

Nature granted me no cunning thought,
Yet my dust bears the power of flight.

That dust whose madness sharpens perception,
That dust from which Gabriel's robe is torn.

That dust which cares nothing for a nest,
Which gathers no chaff from the garden's wide floor.

Allah has granted this dust such tears
That their gleam makes the stars glisten with sweat.

Kalam 069: The People of Vision Will Build New Abodes

JSON title: Karain Ge Ahl-e-Nazar Taza Bastiyan Abad

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/karain-ge-ahl-e-nazar-taza-bastiyan-abad/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The people of vision will build new abodes;
My gaze does not turn toward Kufa or Baghdad.

This seminary, these young men, this joy and grace:
Their very breath keeps Europe's tavern flourishing.

I have no concern with the philosopher or the mullah;
One is the death of the heart, the other corruption of thought and sight.

To slight the city's jurist--what power have I?
Yet this remains: I seek the heart's opening.

The world's delights of Parviz can be bought;
The wealth of Farhad's grief is a gift from Allah.

I have revealed the mysteries of the dervish's way,
So that the seminary's and cloister's thought may be free.

The sage's fasts did not break the Brahmin's spell;
Without the staff, the work of Moses is built on nothing.

Kalam 070: The Angels Have Informed God of Iqbal

JSON title: Ki Haq Se Farishton Ne Iqbal Ki Ghammazi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ki-haq-se-farishton-ne-iqbal-ki-ghamazi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 3 stanzas, 6 lines

The angels have informed God of Iqbal:
He is insolent; he adorns Nature with henna.

Earth-born he may be, but his ways are heavenly;
Neither Roman nor Syrian, Kashan nor Samarqand.

He taught the angels Adam's yearning,
And teaches Adam the manners of his Lord.

Kalam 071: No Piece Remains, No Game of Pieces

JSON title: Ne Muhra Baqi, Ne Muhra Bazi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ne-muhrah-baqi-ne-muhrah-bazi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

No piece remains, no game of pieces remains;
Rumi has won, and Razi has lost.

Jamshid's cup still shines with light;
Kingship is not secured by playing with glass.

The heart is Muslim, neither mine nor yours:
You too are at prayer, and I too am at prayer!

I know how that battle ends,
The battle in which I have joined the victorious.

Turkic is sweet, and Arabic is sweet;
Love's word is neither Turkic nor Arabic.

Azar's craft is stone-carving;
The work of Khalil is to soften stone.

You are life, you are abiding life;
All else that remains is only dust at play.

◆ Kalam 072: The Bell Is Hot with Lament; Rise, the Caravan Has Gone ◆

JSON title: Garam-e-Gaghan Hai Jaras, Uth Ke Gya Qafla
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/garam-e-faghan-hai-jaras-uth-ke-gya-qafla/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

The bell is hot with lament; rise, the caravan has gone!
Woe to the traveler who waits for the mount!

Your nature is one thing, your age another;
The cloister's order is not made for you.

Whether the heart is reason's slave or reason's imam,
Wayfarer, beware: this is a difficult stage.

His self is still captive between evening and dawn,
While his tongue complains of the turning of time.

Your breath has made the rose's fire burn brighter;
O garden bird, this is the reward of your song.

Kalam 073: Through My Song, the Gnostic and the Commoner Were Revived

JSON title: Meri Nawa Se Huwe Zinda Arif-o-Aami
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/meri-nawa-se-huay-zinda-arif-o-aami/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 6 stanzas, 12 lines

Through my song the gnostic and the commoner came alive;
I gave them a taste for drinking fire.

Near the Sanctuary, some Persian sings a melody,
And the garments of ihram have been torn thread by thread.

The eternal truth is the station of Shabbir;
The ways of Kufa and Syria keep changing.

I fear the gamblers are seasoned players;
May your hand's failing not go unrewarded.

It would be no wonder if they granted the Muslim once more
Sanjar's grandeur and Junayd and Bastami's poverty.

The robe of knowledge and art is a special grace; otherwise,
Your gaze had seen my wretched disfigurement.

Kalam 074: The New Moon Passed Beyond Every Station

JSON title: Har Ek Maqam Se Agay Guzar Gya Mah-e-Nau

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/har-ek-maqam-se-agay-guzar-gya-mah-e-nau/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

The new moon passed beyond every station;
Who has attained perfection without striving?

What if a bud opened through the force of breath,
When it was never granted a ray of the sun?

If your gaze is pure, then your heart is pure as well,
For God made the heart follow the gaze.

The burning tulip could not flourish in the garden,
For this world of wheat and barley is not its element.

Though the battles of Aibak and Ghori have vanished,
The song of Khusrau remains forever fresh and sweet.

Kalam 075: Do Not Lose Yourself in This Dawn and Dusk, O Wise One!

JSON title: Kho Na Ja Iss Sehar-o-Sham Mein Ae Sahib-e-Hosh!
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kho-na-ja-iss-sehar-o-sham-mein-ae-sahib-e-hosh/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Do not lose yourself in this dawn and dusk, O wise one!
There is another world where neither tomorrow nor yesterday exists.

Who knows the station of tomorrow's tumult?
The mosque, the school, and the tavern have long been silent.

I found Him in the tears of the dawn watch,
The pure pearl for which the shell's embrace is empty.

The new civilization is nothing but affectation;
If the face is bright, what need is there for the seller of rouge?

The master of the instrument must not remain heedless;
Now and then even Sarosh strikes a wrong note.

Kalam 076: Where the School of Lions and Sovereignty Once Stood

JSON title: Tha Jahan Madrasa-e-Sheri-o-Shehanshahi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tha-jahan-madrasa-e-sheri-o-shahanshahi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

Where once stood a school of lions and sovereignty,
Today, in those cloisters, there is only fox-like cunning.

I found no shepherding among the caravan leaders,
That shepherding which is the prelude to the speech of Kaleem Allah.

Where is the delight of melody for the sweet-voiced bird?
Alas, in this garden the breath falls short.

One intoxication and wonder is wholly dark,
One intoxication and wonder is complete awareness.

My lofty thought flashes like lightning,
So travellers may not wander through the darkness of night.

◆ Kalam 077: I Remember Salman's Well-Tuned Point ◆

JSON title: Hai Yaad Mujhe Nukta-e-Salman-e-Khush Ahang

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/hai-yaad-mujhe-nuktaay-salman-e-khush-ahang/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 3 stanzas, 6 lines

I remember Salman's well-tuned point:
The world is not narrow for men who endure hardship.

A leopard's heart is needed, a falcon's inquisitiveness;
Can one live without the light of knowledge and culture?

Repent of imitating the nightingale and the peacock!
The nightingale is only voice; the peacock is only colour.

Kalam 078: The Miracles of Faqr Are Crown, Throne, and Army

JSON title: Phir Bad-e-Bahar Ayi, Iqbal Ghazal Khawan Ho

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/faqar-ke-hain-maujazat-taj-o-sareer-o-sipah/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 7 stanzas, 14 lines

The miracles of Faqr are crown, throne, and army;
Faqr is the lord of lords, Faqr is the king of kings.

The aim of knowledge is the purity of intellect and reason;
The aim of Faqr is the chastity of heart and sight.

Knowledge is jurist and sage; Faqr is Messiah and Kaleem;
Knowledge seeks the way; Faqr knows the way.

Faqr is the station of vision, knowledge the station of report;
In Faqr, ecstasy is merit; in knowledge, ecstasy is sin.

Knowledge has one "Being," and Faqr has another "Being":
"I bear witness that there is no god but Allah," "I bear witness that there is no god but Allah."

When the sword of selfhood rises upon Faqr's whetstone,
One soldier's blow accomplishes the work of an army.

If the heart is living and awake in this dust,
Your gaze will shatter the mirror of sun and moon.

◆ Kalam 079: In the Height of Passionate Madness I Remained Warm with Circumambulation ◆

JSON title: Kamal-e-Josh-e-Junoon Mein Raha Main Garam-e-Tawaf
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kamal-e-josh-e-junoon-main-raha-garam-e-tawaf/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

In the height of passionate madness, I remained warm with circumambulation;
Praise be to Allah, the covering of the Sanctuary remained safe.

May this blessed accord be for the believers:
The jurists of my city are united in opposition to me.

Plato is restless between the Unseen and the Seen;
Since eternity, the station of the people of reason has been Araf.

Until the Book descends upon your conscience,
Neither Razi nor the author of the Kashshaf can untie the knot.

It is impermanent in delight and burning heat; otherwise,

Even the dregs of Europe's wine are not impure.

◆ Kalam 080: The Matter of Consciousness, Awareness, and Reason Is Strange ◆

JSON title: Shaur-o-Hosh-o-Khirad Ka Maamla Hai Ajeeb
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/shaur-o-hosh-o-khird-ka-maamla-hai-ajeeb/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 5 stanzas, 10 lines

The matter of consciousness, awareness, and reason is strange:
In the station of longing, all hearts and eyes are rivals.

I know what the gathering's fate will be;
The preacher is entangled in theoretical questions.

Though the bird of the garden circles my nest,
The bird of the garden has no share in my song.

I have heard that the Ottoman Turk is skilled in speech;
Who will recite to him this strange verse of Iqbal?

They think Europe is their neighbour,
Though the stars are nearer to their nests.

Kalam 081: Though My Manner of Speech Is Not Very Flamboyant

JSON title: Andaz-e-Byan Gharche Bohat Shaukh Nahin Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/andaz-e-bayan-garcha-bohat-shokh-nahin-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 3 stanzas, 6 lines

Though my manner of speech is not very flamboyant,
Perhaps my word may descend into your heart.

Either in the expanse of the heavens, ceaseless Takbir,
Or in the lap of dust, tasbih and supplication.

That is the faith of men self-aware and drunk with God;
This, the faith of the mullah, of solids and plants.

Kalam 082: The Ways and Rites of the Sanctuary Are Unfamiliar to the Uninitiated

JSON title: Rah-o-Rasm-e-Haram Na-Mehramana ره و رسمِ حرم نا محرمانہ

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/reh-e-rasm-e-haram-na-mehramana/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

The ways and rites of the Sanctuary are unfamiliar to the uninitiated;
The church's manner is mercantile.

My torn robe is my blessing;
This is no age for the people of passion.

Kalam 083: Lost in the Sea's Darkness, Regain Yourself

JSON title: Zulaam-E-Behar Mein Koh Kar Sanbhal Ja

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/zulaam-e-behar-mein-kho-kar-sanbhal-ja/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Lost in the darkness of the sea, regain yourself;
Tremble, twist, and writhe, and transform.

A shore is not your destiny, O wave;
Rise and break out wherever you desire!

Kalam 084: I Am of Place, or Free of Place

JSON title: Makani Hun Ke Azad-e-Makan Hun

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/makani-hun-ke-azad-e-makan-hun/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

I am of place, or free of place;
I see the world, or I myself am the whole world.

Let them remain intoxicated in their placelessness;
Tell me only this: where am I?

◆ Kalam 085: I Remained Lost in the Solitudes of Selfhood ◆

JSON title: Khudi Ki Khalwaton Mein Gum Raha Main

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khudi-ki-khalwaton-mein-gum-raha-main/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

I remained lost in the solitudes of selfhood;
Before God, as though I was not.

I did not lift my eyes to behold the Friend's epiphany;
At Resurrection, I became a spectacle.

Kalam 086: Troubled Is the Business of Knowing

JSON title: Preshan Karobar-e-Ashnai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/preshan-karobar-e-aashanai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Troubled is the business of knowing;
More troubled still my many-hued song!

At times I seek the delight of union;
At times the burning of separation pleases me!

◆ Kalam 087: Faith Is to Sit in Fire Like Khalil ◆

JSON title: Yaqeen. Misl-e-Khalil Atish Nasheeni

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/yaqeen-misl-e-khalil-aatish-nasheeni/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Faith, like Khalil, is to sit within the fire;
Faith is intoxication in Allah, faith is self-renunciation.

Listen, O captive of present-day civilization:
Uncertainty is worse than slavery.

Kalam 088: In Arab's Burning Is Ajam's Music

JSON title: Arab Ke Souz Mein Saaz-e-Ajam Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/arab-ke-soz-mein-saaz-e-ajam-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

In Arab's burning ardor is Ajam's music;
The secret of the Sanctuary is the unity of nations.

Deprived of unity is the West's thought;
For Western civilization is without a sanctuary.

Kalam 089: Let Anyone See My Reed-Playing

JSON title: Koi Dekhe Tau Meri Ne Nawazi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/koi-dekhe-to-meri-ne-nawazi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Let anyone see my reed-playing:
Indian breath, an Arabian pitch of song.

An eye stained by the manner of Europe;
Ghaznavid temperament, Ayaz-like fortune!

Kalam 090: Perhaps a Heart Dwells in Every Particle

JSON title: Har Ek Zarre Mein Hai Shaid Makeen Dil

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/har-ek-zarre-mein-hai-shaid-makeen-dil/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Perhaps a heart dwells in every particle;
In this very manifestation dwells a heart secluded in solitude.

A captive of yesterday and tomorrow, yet it is not my heart
That is enslaved to the turning of time.

Kalam 091: Tera Andesha Aflaki Nahin Hai

JSON title: Tera Andesha Aflaki Nahin Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tera-andesha-aflaki-nahin-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Your thought is not celestial;
Your flight is not of the Loulaki kind.

Granted, your essence is falcon-like,
But your eyes hold no fearlessness.

Kalam 092: Na Momin Hai Na Momin Ki Ameeri

JSON title: Na Momin Hai Na Momin Ki Ameeri

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/na-momin-hai-na-momin-ki-ameeri/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

There is neither a believer nor a believer's sovereignty;
The Sufi remains, but the luminous heart is gone.

Ask Allah once more for heart and vision:
Sovereignty is impossible without faqr.

Kalam 093: Khudi Ki Jalwaton Mein Mustafai

JSON title: Khudi Ki Jalwaton Mein Mustafai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khudi-ki-jalwaton-mein-mustafai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

In selfhood's radiance is the way of Mustafa;
In selfhood's solitude is the majesty of the Divine.

Earth, heaven, the Throne and the Arsh:
All Godhead lies within selfhood's reach!

Kalam 094: Nigah Uljhi Huwi Hai Rang-o-Boo Mein

JSON title: Nigah Uljhi Huwi Hai Rang-o-Boo Mein

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/nigah-uljhi-huwi-hai-rang-o-bu-mein/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

My gaze is entangled in colour and scent;
Reason is lost in every direction.

Do not forsake, O heart, the dawn's lament;
Perhaps refuge may be found in “Allah Hu.”

Kalam 095: Jamal-e-Ishq-o-Masti Ne Nawazi

JSON title: Jamal-e-Ishq-o-Masti Ne Nawazi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/jamal-e-ishq-o-masti-ne-nawazi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

The beauty of love and ecstasy has made the reed sing;
The majesty of love and ecstasy is indifference.

The perfection of love and ecstasy is Haidar's capacity;
The decline of love and ecstasy is Razi's word.

Kalam 096: Where Is That Ornament of My Gathering?

JSON title: Woh Mera Ronaq-e-Mehfil Kahan Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/vo-mera-ronaq-e-mehfil-kahan-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Where is that adornment of my gathering, that was mine?
Where is my lightning, my harvest?

His station is in the solitudes of the heart;
God knows where the heart's own station is!

Kalam 097: I Am No Rider of Camel or Howdah

JSON title: Sawar-e-Naqa-o-Mehmil Nahin Main

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/sawar-e-naqa-o-mohmil-nahin-main/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

I am no rider of camel and howdah;
I am the sign along the road, not the destination.

My destiny is to burn the straw and chaff;
I am only lightning; I am not the harvest.

◆ Kalam 098: You Have Breath in Your Breast, but No Heart ◆

JSON title: Tere Seene Mein Dam Hai, Dil Nahin Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tere-sine-mein-dam-hai-dil-nahin-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

You have breath in your breast, but no heart;
Your breath brings no warmth to the gathering.

Go beyond reason, for this light
Is a lantern for the road, not the destination.

Kalam 099: Your Essence Is Luminous, Pure Are You

JSON title: Tera Jauhar Hai Noori, Pak Hai Tu

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tera-johar-hai-noori-pak-hai-tu/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Your essence is luminous, pure are you;
You are the radiance of the heavens' eye.

Angels and houris are your helpless prey,
For you are the falcon of the King of Loulak ﷺ!

Kalam 100: Love's Madness Remains No More

JSON title: Mohabbat Ka Junoon Baqi Nahin Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/mohabbat-ka-junoon-baqi-nahin-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Love's madness remains no more;
Among Muslims, no blood remains.

The rows are crooked, hearts distraught, prostration without delight,
For the inward fervor remains no more.

Bal-e-Jibreel: Poetic English Translation

This manuscript translates kalams 101-105 in JSON order from content/books/bal-e-jibreel.json. The Urdu field is the semantic source; the transliteration field verifies stanza and line traceability.

Kalam 101: By the Strength of Self, Rise Over the World

JSON title: Khudi Ke Zor Se Dunya Pe Chha Ja

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khudi-ke-zor-se-dunya-pe-cha-ja/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

By the strength of self, rise over the world;
Grasp the secret of the realm of colour and scent.

Like the sea, remain acquainted with the shore;
Keep drawing your hem away from the shore's edge.

Kalam 102: The Garden's Flower-Dress Is Wet with Dew

JSON title: Chaman Mein Rakht-e-Gul Se Tar Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/chaman-mein-rakht-e-gul-shabnam-se-tar-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

The garden's flower-dress is wet with dew;
Jasmine, green grass, and the dawn wind are here.

Yet no tumult can grow warm here;
This garden's poppy is without the fire of the heart.

◆ Kalam 103: Through Reason, the Wayfarer Sees Clearly ◆

JSON title: Khirad Se Rahru Roshan Basar Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khirad-se-rahru-roshan-basar-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Through reason, the wayfarer sees clearly;
What is reason? A lamp upon the road.

What commotions are within the house, who can tell?
What can the roadside lamp know!

Kalam 104: Give My Dawn-Hour Sigh to the Young

JSON title: Jawanon Ko Meri Aah-e-Sehar De

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/jawanon-ko-meri-aah-e-sehar-de/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Give my dawn-hour sigh to the young;
Then give those falcon boys wings and feathers.

O God, this alone is my desire:
Make my light of insight universal.

Kalam 105: Your World Is the World of Bird and Fish

JSON title: Teri Dunya Jahan-e-Murg-o-Maahi

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/teri-dunya-jahan-e-murgh-o-mahi/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Your world is the world of bird and fish;
My world is the dawn-hour cry.

In Your world, I am subject and compelled;
In my world, Your sovereignty!

Kalam 106: Your Grace Has Not Left Me Without a Jewel

JSON title: Karam Tera Ke Be-Jauhar Nahin Main

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/karam-tera-ke-be-johar-nahin-main/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Your grace has kept me from being without a jewel;
I am no slave of Tughral or Sanjar.

World-seeing is my nature, yet
I am no goblet of Jamshid.

Kalam 107: He Is the Essence of Place and Placelessness

JSON title: Wohi Asal-e-Makan-o-La Makan Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/wohi-asal-e-makan-o-la-makan-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

He is the very essence of place and placelessness;
What is place? A mode of expression.

How can Khidr tell, what can he tell,
If a fish should ask, "Where is the sea?"

Kalam 108: Sometimes Love Is Wandering and Homeless

JSON title: Kabhi Awara-o-Be-Khanama Ishq

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kabhi-awara-o-be-khanman-ishq/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Sometimes love is wandering, homeless;

Sometimes love is Nushirvan, king of kings.

Sometimes it enters the field in armor;

Sometimes love is unclad, without sword or spear!

Kalam 109: Sometimes Love Is the Solitude of Mountain and Wilderness

JSON title: Kabhi Tanhai-e-Koh-o-Daman Ishq
Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/kabhi-tanhai-e-koh-o-daman-ishq/
Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Sometimes love is the solitude of mountain and wilderness;
Sometimes love is burning, rapture, and assembly.

Sometimes love is the treasure of mihrab and pulpit;
Sometimes love is Mawla Ali, breaker of Khyber!

Kalam 110: Grant Me the Inner Ardor of the Forebears

JSON title: Atta Islaf Ka Jazb-e-Daroon Kar

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/atta-aslaf-ka-jazb-e-darun-kar/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Grant me the inner ardor of the forebears;
Make me one of the company of "لَا یَحْزَنُوْں".

I have untangled the knots of reason;
My Lord, make me a master of madness!

Kalam 111: This Truth I Learned from Bu'l-Hasan

JSON title: Ye Nukta Main Ne Sikha Bu-Al-Hassan Se

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ye-nukta-main-ne-sikha-bu-al-hassan-se/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

This truth I learned from Bu'l-Hasan:
The soul does not die with the body's death.

How long can the sun retain its shining
If it grows weary of its own ray?

Kalam 112: Reason Knows Not Good from Ill

JSON title: Khirad Waqif Nahin Hai Naik-o-Bad Se

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khirad-waqif-nahin-hai-naik-o-bad-se/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Reason knows not good from ill;
The tyrant ever oversteps his bounds.

God knows what has become of me:
Reason is weary of the heart, the heart of reason!

Kalam 113: God's Ordering of Dry and Wet

JSON title: Khudai Ehtamam-e-Khushk-o-Tar Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khudai-ehtemam-e-khushk-o-tar-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

The ordering of dry and wet is God's;
O Lord! Godhead is a headache.

Yet servanthood, I seek Allah's forgiveness!
This is not a headache, but pain within the heart.

Kalam 114: This Is Adam, Sovereign of Sea and Land

JSON title: Yehi Adam Hai Sultan Behar-e-Bar Ka

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/yehi-adam-hai-sultan-behar-o-bar-ka/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

This is Adam, sovereign of sea and land;
What can I say of this sightless one?

Neither self-seeing, nor God-seeing, nor world-seeing:
This is the masterpiece of Your art!

Kalam 115: The Gnostic's Breath Is the Morning Breeze

JSON title: Dam-e-Arif Naseem-e-Subahdam Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/dam-e-arif-nasim-e-subah-dam-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

The gnostic's breath is the morning breeze;
Through it, the root of meaning is moist.

If some Shu'ayb should become available,
From shepherding to Mosaic illumination is but two steps.

◆ Kalam 116: That Blood No Longer Remains in the Veins ◆

JSON title: Ragon Mein Woh Lahoo Baqi Nahin Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/ragon-mein-vo-lahoo-baqi-nahin-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

That blood no longer remains within the veins;
That heart, that longing, no longer remains.

Prayer, fasting, sacrifice, and pilgrimage—
All these remain; but you no longer remain.

◆ Kalam 117: The Hidden Secrets Are Unfolding ◆

JSON title: Khule Jate Hain Asrar-e-Nihani

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/khule-jate-hain-asrar-e-nihani/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

The hidden secrets now unfold;
The age of "Lan Tarani" has passed.

Whose self first rose into manifestation—
That one is the Mahdi, that one the Last of the Age!

Kalam 118: This Everlasting Turning of Time

JSON title: Zamane Ki Ye Gardish Javidana

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/zamane-ki-ye-gardish-javidana/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

This everlasting turning of time—
You alone are reality; all else is a tale.

No one has seen yesterday or tomorrow;
Only today is your age.

Kalam 119: Philosophy Is the Self's Un-Islam

JSON title: Hakeemi, Na-Musalmani Khudi Ki

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/hakeemi-na-musalmani-khudi-ki/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Philosophy is the self's un-Islam;
Moseshood, the self's hidden secret.

Let me tell you the art of poverty and kingship:
In poverty lies the self's guardianship!

Kalam 120: Your Body Is Unacquainted with the Soul

JSON title: Tera Tan Rooh Se Na-Ashna Hai

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/tera-tan-rooh-se-na-aashna-hai/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Your body is unacquainted with the soul;
No wonder—your cry cannot reach its mark.

The True One is weary of a soulless body;
The Living God is the God of the living.

Kalam 121: Iqbal Recited Yesterday to the People of the Garden Walk

JSON title: اقبالؔ نے کل اہلِ خیاباں کو سُنایا(Qataa)Iqbal Ne Kal Ahl-e-Khayaban Ko Sunaya

Source URL: https://allamaiqbal.org/bal-e-jibril/iqbal-ne-kal-ahl-e-khayaban-ko-sunaya/

Source trace: JSON urdu and transliteration; 2 stanzas, 4 lines

Iqbal recited yesterday to the people of the garden walk
This poem, joy-awakening, full of burning joy.

Like a flower, I need not the hand of the morning breeze;
My fervour of madness rends my robe apart.